F o r w o r d

THE SOCIETY OF INDEPENDENT ARTISTS was incorporated under the laws of New York for the purpose of holding exhibitions in which all artists may participate independently of the decisions of juries. It gave its first annual exhibition at the Grand Central Palace in the Spring of 1917. Early this year an announcement of the present exhibition was sent to the members of the Society and other artists. This notice said, in part:

The directors believe that the exhibition of this year, coming, as it does, at the opening of a new era, is one of such importance that its success is almost an essential for the future of the Society. Our work up to now has been carried on in a period of tremendous stress. The two definitely successful exhibitions we have given may be regarded with pride not only by the artists who took part in them, but by the many thousands of people who visited them and otherwise gave support to the idea that a nation doing its utmost in a great war still felt art not to be a dispensable luxury, but a profound and vital need, and that it must continue its development uninterruptedly.

With the coming of peace, it is even more incumbent upon the Society to hold to its programme: that of giving an exhibition each year in which all artists may participate, independent of the jury system, which has always shown itself defective, and independent of the distinctions created by prizes or by the giving of places of honor to works considered especially meritorious. The result has been exhibitions to which artists of all shades of opinion and of all stages of recognition have contributed. Unknown men submitting work to the judgment of their fellows and the public for the first time and the most distinguished members of the profession, assuming no responsibility for one another's work, meet in a common effort to draw on the full resources of our art and give complete opportunity for decisions as to the tendencies most important at the time and the personalities that represent them.

The directors believe that no agency of reconstruction—which is the work of the world today—offers greater hope of success than that of the free statement of conviction. The Society offers this opportunity for expression, and with it an impartial medium of sale which has already proved its value to a substantial number of exhibitors. Artists who believe in the principle of the Society and who desire it to continue and permanently succeed should not only send to the exhibition but should see to it that others do so. They should secure members of their own schools in order that these be fully understood, they should welcome exhibitors of opposed ideas in order that the contrasts make still more clear the value of the different tendencies.

An Advisory Board has been elected from amongst artists who have long been in sympathy with the ideal of the Society. The directors look to this board for suggestions which will be of value in our future work.

For such persons, not necessarily artists, who believe in the Society and desire to give it their aid without taking part in the exhibitions, a class of Associate Members has been formed. Their dues shall be ten dollars annually and they will receive the general notices and catalogues of the Society, and members' season tickets to its exhibition.

Any artist (painter, sculptor, etcher, lithographer or other worker in the graphic and plastic arts) may become an Active Member of the Society.

The response to the above notice may be judged from the present exhibition. February 1st was the date set for closing the list of exhibitors for the year. The Directors allowed a few days' grace for the receipt of delayed letters and then engaged the Waldorf-Astoria as the exhibition place. It was large enough for the membership at the time and while we regret the necessity of declining the many applications which have since reached us, we believe that it is only just to the members who joined within the appointed time and whose works are entitled to the full space at our disposal.

A MAJORITY of the works exhibited are for sale. The prices will be found on the number cards of the exhibits, except in cases where the word "Desk" replaces the price. For the prices of works not given on the cards, intending purchasers may consult the officials and attendants of the exhibition, or the sales agent at the catalogue desk. The members of the Society have been requested to state the lowest prices they will accept for their exhibits; the Directors therefore decline to consider or transmit any proposals for sales at prices other than those stated.

The plates illustrating this catalogue were not selected by the Society, but are simply those of the members who paid for the space.
